COURT RULES TALMADGE IS 'IT'

POWER SLASH SPREADS OVER ALL BRITAIN

Electric Shutoffs Extended Throughout Nation After Cabinet Session.

LONDON — (INS) — The whole of the United Kingdom, England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, was brought into the crippling blanket of an electric light and power shutoff today.

Immediately following a new urgent meeting of the British cabinet, called to deal with the increasingly severe fuel shortage, the fuel ministry announced nationwide extension of the present five hour a day stoppage.

The order goes into effect at midnight.

The government also announced new and drastic cuts in street lighting which will return Britain to its wartime blackout status.

Only traffic lights will remain in operation.

Labor Candidate Wins.

Despite fears that the worsening situation might have an adverse political effect on the labor government, the Labor party candidate emerged victorious in the Normanton by-election in Yorkshire.

George Sylvester, Laborite councillor, won out with a majority of 14,827 over J. E. Powell, Conservative. Sylvester was opposed also by Dr. W. D. Hartley, an independent.

Sylvester polled 19,085 votes, Powell 4,258, and Hartley 579. The Laborite general election majority was 22,979.

Plans also were understood to be under way to mobilize transport on a near war-time basis for the movement of coal. This action may be taken regardless of the effect on passenger train schedules.

* * *

Blizzard Continues.

The ninth day of blizzard conditions in the north and a continuous freeze-up in the south further dislocated Britain's transportation system today, preventing much-needed coal from moving to the paralyzed industrial belt.

Thirty-eight coal ships, laden with 70,000 tons of coal, took advantage of a very slight abatement in the storms at sea. The vessels sailed from Tyne ports for the southeast, while 43 others hoped for a get-away later in the day.

These sea-borne fuel supplies were not expected to relieve the electricity curtailment, but will help maintain the dangerously-waning domestic gas pressure.

SCHOOL BILL WINS SUPPORT

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Support for the 98 million dollar Daniels-Cramer school bill snowballed downhill today.

Latest groups to favor the bill before the senate education committee, despite its increase of 38 millions a year over last year's all time high, included the Ohio Federation of Labor, the Ohio CIO, the Junior Order of American Mechanics, the AFL Ohio Federation of Teachers, the Farm Bureau and the "Ohio Citizens School Committee."

State Education Director Clyde Hissong, of Bowling Green, appeared before the committee at the request of Chairman Virgil Cramer (R., Toledo) but contented himself with pointing out the need for more teachers.

How the problem is to be solved, he told the senators, "is your problem." He said that all he was interested in was "leadership for 1,130,000 Ohio boys and girls."

SCORES HALT WORK TO HONOR LINCOLN

Scores of workers in public offices and banks in Mansfield gained a holiday today in observance of the 138th anniversary of the birth of President Abraham Lincoln. Still others not receiving the day off today could look forward to a holiday on George Washington's birthday Feb. 22.

Closed today were all banks, the Ohio State Employment service and most other state offices, including both liquor stores.

Scheduled to close Feb. 22 are the city building, county courthouse. OSES, the liquor stores, the bureau of internal revenue and the banks. The postoffice will establish a schedule of reduced services Feb. 22 but what it will be has not been decided yet, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said.

Crowd of 1,000 Expected to Hear Sizzler Tonight

More than 1,000 Mansfield merchants and their employes are expected at John Simpson auditorium tonight to hear Elmer (Sizzler) Wheeler, president of the Tested Selling Institute, author and national sales promoter.

Wheeler's appearance here will mark the second in a series of rallies sponsored by the Retail Merchants' association toward establishing Mansfield as the "shopping center of north-central Ohio."

Wheeler, who appeared in Cleveland last night, will continue his tour to Chicago tomorrow.

The flight of planes on Feb. 22 is contingent upon weather conditions, Major McConnell, in charge of arrangements for the flight, said.

Miners Demand Portal Pay for Honesty Checkup

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) —

San Francisco's federal district court had still another portal-to-portal pay suit to consider today, this time one filed by 53 California gold miners.

The miners want to be paid for the time required to check on their honesty. The suit points out that they must stand inspection daily to see none of them is taking home any samples.

They ask damages in no specific amount from the Idaho, Maryland Mines corporation, which operates a gold mine in Gus Valley, Calif.

Blaze at Ohio Theater Brings Safety Warning

CHIEF ORDERS REMOVAL OF WASTE PAPER

150 Patrons Leave Building After Flames Are Found Beneath Stage.

The Ohio theater, scene of a minor fire last night, today was ordered by Fire Chief L. J. Steele to remove all rubbish from the building and not to store inflammable material in the theater.

The fire, which was discovered about 5:45 p. m., filled the theater with smoke. Approximately 150 patrons filed out when told of the fire.

Don Jacobs, theater manager, said the exodus was orderly. He said the damage was slight and confined to a small storage room under the stage.

Chief Steele, however, declared that but for the fact that the fire was found quickly, "the building could have been gutted."

Firemen said flames were reaching through a hole in the stage floor when they arrived and within a few, minutes the fire probably would have ignited the drapes on the stage.

* * *

Sees Smoke.

Smoke was observed pouring from the rear of the theater by an unidentified woman who lived nearby. She telephoned Mrs. Lloyd Keefer, box office cashier, who turned in the alarm.

Steele said the fire apparently was started by spontaneous combustion in a bin beneath the stage. He said the bin was filled with rubbish, "including highly inflammable wax paper from pop corn boxes."

He also noted that a steam heater was located over the bin, and said high voltage cables near the room were damaged.

The fire chief said it was a violation of state law to store inflammable material in a theater. He said both the Park and Ritz theaters here have complied with the law, and that he believes the Madison stores rubbish outside too."

The Ohio was inspected by the fire department during the last week, he said, and exit lights and doors had been found "in excellent condition."

"I feel sure the Ohio will correct unsafe conditions immediately," Chief Steele said. "In general, Mansfield theaters are in fair shape."

Jacobs last night declined to take pictures of the scene of the fire.

The theater was closed until 7:30 p. m. to clear out the smoke, and then shows were resumed.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS CLIMB TO $53,000

More than $53,000 was paid out in 1946 to employes of the Westinghouse Electric Appliance Division plant in Mansfield for benefits under the company hospitalization insurance plan, it was reported today by H. W. Arlin, manager of industrial relations.

The company plan for group hospitalization covers both the employe and his dependents.

Arlin said $19,187 was paid out for employe hospital bills, $12,635 for employe surgical bills, and $21,670 for hospital bills of employes' dependents. A total of 4,738 employes are enrolled in the company hospitalization plan.

CAA Places City Airport on Its Preferred List

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said today that city officials would meet with Civil Aeronautics Authority officials soon to begin preliminary discussions concerning the construction of an administration building at Mansfield's airport.

Vaughn said he has learned the city has been put on a "preferred list" by the CAA for a new building. He said the type of building to be put up depends upon how much the city can pay toward its construction. It is to be built on a matching fund basis, he said.

The city now has a preliminary request filed with CAA for a $100,000 administration building, the mayor pointed out. This may be scaled down depending upon the city's ability to share costs and the amount of air traffic which will use the port, he said.

Vaughn, with City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, returned today from a conference with CAA officials at Chicago.

* * *

Work Starts Soon.

Officials there said that work of setting up a weather-communications station at the city's port would begin about March 1.

In addition, Vaughn and Wagner also were informed by CAA officials that aircraft gasoline and oil concessions cannot be let on an "exclusive" basis.

This will mean, the mayor indicated, that the city's present lease with Harrington Air service, Inc., for exclusive gas and oil rights will have to be amended or modified.

Vaughn said that runway lights and their cables have been installed at the port. Marker lights and cables have yet to be installed, he said.

The mayor expressed the hope that by mid-summer the Civil Aeronautics board will have assigned trunk line service to the city, "particularly east-west service." He said that by mid-summer the lighting and weather-communications systems should be completed.

Dutch Wonder If New Baby Will Be Boy

THE HAGUE —(U.P.)— Princess Juliana is expecting her fourth child and the Dutch nation wonders if the new arrival will be a boy—the first in two generations of the ruling family.

The three children in the family are girls, but the Dutch people are speculating as before on the sex of the expected child.

Prince Bernhard and Princess Juliana were asked recently whether they would prefer a boy or a girl and the prince replied that "whether a boy or a girl, it will be received by us with the same enjoyment."

"Is it not unfair toward women to prefer a boy?" he asked. "Don't we have a shining example of what a woman can achieve in our queen, my mother-in-law?"

If the child is a boy, he would become the heir presumptive to the throne, replacing the present eldest girl, Princess Beatrix.

VA TAKES OVER NEW OFFICES, ADDS SERVICE

Medical Division to Aid Vets Will Be Opened In New Quarters.

Thursday is moving and expansion day for the Mansfield sub-regional office, Veterans Administration. G. D. Weidemaier, manager of the Mansfield office, said today that the VA training and supply divisions will move tomorrow to new quarters in the new building at 118½ Park avenue west. This building is to be popularly known as the "P.A.W. building."

In line with the move, the local VA will expand its services to include a medical division. Dr. B. B. Sutton, chief medical officer, will head the division. He will be assisted by Misses Ann Bayer and Thelma Meyers.

VA will occupy the entire 9,000 square feet of floor space on the second floor of the building. The lower floor will be a Kroger grocery store. Partitions on the second floor are not yet in, Weidemaier said. Until they are placed, the contacts division and the newly activated medical division will remain in the old VA offices in the Walpark building.

Veterans interested in matters pertaining to training and education should henceforth come to the P.A.W. building, Weidemaier said.

"We hope to move our entire force to the building between March 1 and 15," he added.

Dr. Sutton said that for the present, the new medical division will only be prepared to fulfill requests and authorizations for medical treatment. This was formerly done in the Cleveland Regional office.

"We are not as yet prepared for complete out-patient treatment," Sutton said. "We are prepared to give all medical information sought by veterans."

JEWELS 'JUNK' TO SECRETARY

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Col. Jack W. Durant's pretty former secretary testified today at the Hessian crown jewel theft court martial that when she agreed to bring gems from London to America she thought they were "junk."

The strikingly attractive witness, Mrs. Martha L. Evans, once a United Nations conference secretary, asserted that when Durant asked her to transport the jewels to the United States he did not request her to conceal them.

Mrs. Evans, testifying at Durant's trial on charges of "masterminding" the alleged one million 500 thousand dollar theft, declared:

"I had no immunity coming through customs. I opened my bag and let the customs officers inspect anything they wanted to."

The young woman asserted that the glittering baubles turned over to her by Durant in London looked like "cheap, junky costume jewelry."

CITIES DISAGREE

ASHTABULA—(U.P.)—A battle of cities appeared to be shaping up today over the proposed Ohio river-Lake Erie canal. At the second hearing on the proposal here yesterday, representatives from Youngstown and Warren supported the canal, while Ashtabula sentiment was almost unanimous in opposing it.

Students Set Up Gangster-Style Protection Plan

YOUNGSTOWN — (U.P.) — Twelve students at Hayes school were under judicial warning today after parents alleged they had forced schoolmates to pay nickels and dimes as protection against threatened beatings.

Witnesses told Judge Henry Beckenbach they had been threatened, but none could tell of any actual beatings.

Several of the boys admitted they had collected money, and said they did it because they were forced to pay "protection" themselves when they first entered the school.

CHIANG FIGHTS CHINESE PANIC

Speculators Dump Holdings as Government Plans To Curb Inflation.

SHANGHAI — (U.P.) — Spurred by rumors that the government plans drastic action to curb a runaway inflation, speculators dumped their holdings today in spectacular profit-taking that toppled gold and U. S. dollar quotations from yesterday's peaks.

Gold fell to 700,000 Chinese yuan (dollars) the ounce today from its high of 920,000 yesterday. The U. S. dollar was down to 14,500 yuan from its previous high of 17,500. The official rate is 3,350 to one.

Commodity prices, however, which shot up as fast or faster than currency, showed little inclination to recede as Chinese rapidly lost confidence in their currency and strove to convert their money into goods. Some prices rose as high as 200 per cent in two days.

Minister of information Peng Hsueh-Pei told a press conference at Nanking that the government was "confident" it would weather the crisis. Other government spokesmen quoted the generalissimo as assuring that the panic would be over winin three months.

Business Collapsing.

Meanwhile, Victor Kendrick, United Press correspondent at Canton, reported business activities there were virtually at a standstill, with finance, commerce and industry on the verge of a "total collapse." Activity in cloth, rice and banking was expected to halt today.

Canton papers said eight to 10 banks will close. Transportation came to a standstill because no gasoline was being sold.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek ordered Premier T. V. Soong to take drastic economic measures to halt disastrous inflation that has made Chinese currency virtually worthless, a high government official disclosed.

Chiang declared war on China's economic chaos in an emergency meeting with his top advisers and formulated a program of action to curb the financial panic that has gripped the country for the past few days.

MERCURY RISES; GAS CRISIS OVER

As the mercury continued to inch upward today, normal gas service resumed throughout Ohio.

At noon the thermometer stood at 31 at the Longview avenue station of the Ohio Public Service company. The low yesterday at Hayesville was 18; the high 28.

Mansfield gas-users, who had felt the pinch of the cold weather shortage, returned to normal use of gas.

G. K. Schooler, Mansfield district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, said such manufacturers as Westinghouse, Tappan Stove and Empire Steel would continue to use their special standby gas equipment for the "next day or so."

The weatherman predicted temperatures would rise for several days, possibly into the 50's in southern Ohio tomorrow.

Rain or snow was seen for the Mansfield area tomorrow, but continued mild weather was promised until Sunday.

ASSEMBLY HAD POWER TO ACT, STATES JUDGE

Thompson Lawyers Preparing To Appeal Decision 'At Once.'

M'DONOUGH — (AP) — Superior Judge Walter Hendrix ruled today that Herman Talmadge is the legal governor of Georgia.

In a 2,000 word decision Judge Hendrix said the legislature was within its constitutional rights when it elected Talmadge Jan. 15 to the four-year term of the late Eugene Talmadge, his father.

The court sustained demurrers of Herman Talmadge and dismissed a suit of Lieut.-Gov. M. E. Thompson which had asked a declaratory judgment ousting Talmadge from the governorship.

* * *

Upholds Assembly.

The judge said "it is clear that the general assembly has the right to decide when there was no election by the people. It did decide that on account of the death of the governor-elect there had been no election by the people. In our opinion the constitution then put the duty and responsibility on it to elect and install a governor, this duty and responsibility to decide as it saw fit. When it (the legislature) acts within its authority, courts cannot interfere.

Judge Hendrix's decision, rendered before about 200 spectators in Henry county's rural courtroom, was in direct opposition to the finding of another superior (circuit) judge last Friday at Rome, Ga.

There, Judge Claude Porter took a conflicting view that the legislature had unquestionably exceeded its authority, and ruled Talmadge's election was invalid.

Counsel for Thompson said Judge Hendrix's decision would be appealed "at once" to the Georgia supreme court.

* * *

Issues Comment.

Before the court's decision, Lieut. Gov. Thompson authorized the following comment, which he said "stands as my comment before the decision, and which will still be my comment after the decision."

Said Thompson: "Both Judge Hendrix and Judge Porter are honorable men and highly respected as judges throughout the state. The next decision rests with the state supreme court. The people are entitled to the earliest possible final decision on this issue."

Talmadge, when informed at Atlanta of the decision by the Associated Press, said he was not surprised. He added that he had felt confident from the start that the decision would be in his favor inasmuch as "many of the lawyers of Georgia had taken the same position."

BUDGET BATTLE HITS ASSEMBLY

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The biennial battle of the budget got up a head of steam in the Ohio legislature today.

Sen. Albert L. Daniels (R-Highland), senate finance committee chairman, fired up the boilers with an estimate that about $100,000,000 above needed operating expenses would be available for extra appropriations.

The sum was nearly double the $53,000,000 recently arrived at by a special group of representatives headed by Rep. Paul H. Ballard (R-Jackson), chairman of the House Finance committee, who said he was sticking to that figure.

Daniels, a cigar manufacturer who said he had been struggling with budgets ever since he shined shoes and sold papers as a boy in Greenfield, said state revenues would run about $488,000,000 in 1947 and 1948.

He set expenses, based on the recent six-month appropriations, at $418,989,281, leaving a balance of $69,010,716. To that he added $11,000,000 unspent from appropriations of two years ago.

Then Daniels said his estimate of sales taxes used in figuring total state income for the coming biennium probably was some $20,000,000 too low. That would bring his grand total to $100,000,000 available for extra appropriations.

Ballard's committee recently said only $422,000,000 could be expected in revenues and that expenses would run $380,000,000 leaving a balance of $42,000,000 to which the unexpended $11,000,000 was added for a top total of $53,000,000.

The Ballard total available to meet demands for extra appropriations, already far past the $100,000,000 mark, was reached after consultations with the state's finance director, treasurer and tax commissioner. It was based on 1945-46 receipts.

BYRD EXPEDITION FINDS UNFROZEN POLAR 'OASIS'

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MOUNT OLYMPUS—(Feb. 11)—The discovery on the frozen South Polar continent of a remarkable inland "oasis" of muddy pea green lakes dotted with tall dark brown mounds of apparently bare earth was announced today. The discovery may be one of the most important made by the navy expedition.

A 40-mile-wide land of lakes region with conical mounds rising 500 feet above the surface in an area completely devoid of ice was located inland in the vicinity of the Knox coast by fliers of the expedition's western task group reconnoitering in PRM Mariner planes Monday, Capt. Robert S. Quackenbush, jr., chief of the expeditionary staff, said.

Discovery of the lakes and mounds, which resembled chocolate drops from the air, raised the question as to whether the area might be warm enough to support year-round human settlements comfortably. Expeditionary leaders said they considered the discovery of greatest significance from the standpoints of geology and geography.

Mine Chief Faces Top Battle of Career

FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

Ghosts On Picket Line

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) —Beauty about a ghost marching in a picket line during a strike is that he doesn't take time out to eat. He never gets hungry. He just tramps back and forth in his invisible shrouds, chewing his phantom gum and snarling spectral insults.

"Ghosts?" asked a flesh-and-blood senator, name of Robert A. Taft. He comes from Ohio, heads the senate labor committee, and would be the first to admit the difficulty of controlling by law wraiths walking two-by-two in front of the employees' entrance.

"Yes sir, ghosts," replied Almon E. Roth of San Francisco, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, Inc. "Or at least that's what we call 'em on the waterfront."

There are two kinds of ghosts on strike. The tall, gray-haired Roth has encountered both varieties of union spook. He was delighted to describe for the senators their phantasmal operations.

Not long ago, he said, three large freighters of the Luckenbach line steamed into the San Francisco harbor to unload cargoes from the far corners of the earth. The radio operator aboard one of these vessels, rightly or wrongly, was sore at the captain. He painted a sign and as soon as his ship docked he declared a one-man strike and began to picket the pier.

"This effectively stopped unloading of the three ships," Roth testified. "No matter what an individual longshoreman or sailor may think, the industry is so highly unionized that any man who crosses any picket line is marked for life. Odds are against him ever getting a job again. So the radio operator maintained his own picket line until he got hungry."

* * *

THEN HE PAINTED another sign and placed it in front of the pier; it said: "Picket out to lunch —will be back at 1:30 p. m." Nobody crossed the imaginary, or ghostly picket line, either, Roth said.

The second type of ghost, even more exasperating to the shipping men, never shows his face at all. Nobody ever knows what his grievance is.

An example of that, Roth said, was when nine cars of Oregon pears arrived at the San Francisco docks for shipment abroad. The Oregon pear pickers, unhappy about something unknown in San Francisco, scribbled on the side of each freight car the words: "Hot Cargo."

"So nobody would touch those pears," Roth said. "Ghostly pickets stopped their movement as effectively as live ones."

Nobody in San Francisco ever learned the cause of the strife in the Oregon orchards, nor even who scribbled the phantasmal warnings on the cars. The pears rotted, no good except, of course, for ghosts.

A third situation, not quite so spooky, found the engineers aboard the ships of the United Fruit company, voting six to one in a National Labor Relations Board election against the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association as their representative. All hands thought that particular ghost had been buried.

"But no," Roth testified. "The beneficial association threw picket lines around the piers in New York. Seamen and longshoremen alike dared not cross them and 38 vessels of the fruit company were tied up."

What with ghosts, slow-downs and feather-bedding practices, Roth continued, the American shipping industry can't begin to compete with foreign lines. Not in 20 years, for instance, has a longshoreman, or even his ghost, gone on strike in any British port, he said.

He turned the ghosts over to the senate. He said there ought to be a law and he only hopes (he having little faith in clairvoyancy) that it works.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Ickes Paid Low Rent

MANY OF MY fellow-robots, members of that inferior race known as the common man, have shared my feelings in the discovery that, as taxpayers, we have had the privilege of providing a furnished summer home for Harold L. Ickes, one of our severest patrons, at Acadia Park, Maine, at the "very moderate" rent of $50 a month. The phrase "very moderate," is not my own, but the language of Oscar Chapman, the assistant secretary of the interior, and is modest to the point of bashfulness inasmuch as Senator Ralph Brewster, of Maine, says that a fair competitive rental" would be $1,000 for the season, of about four months.

The "very moderate" rental was established during Mr. Ickes' tenure as secretary of the interior The department is not gratuitously confiding, so it is not for me but for them to say whether Mr. Ickes himself hit upon this figure and, if so, whether he based it on practical considerations or played a hunch like the late President Roosevelt, when he hiked the price of gold 21 cents because that was three times lucky seven and thus a thrice-charmed figure.

The common man is an anthropological discovery, of the 20th century, generally credited to Henry Wallace, a noted Indian wrestler and boomerang-thrower of his time who was also the undefeated catchweight champion at face-tag, musical chairs and spin-the-plate in his earlier athletic career in Des Moines.

* * *

THE COMMON MAN is distinctly superior to the Neanderthal man, but equally inferior to the Hyde Park man, the highest point in human culture to date. Mr. Ickes is a Hyde Park man.

Arthur Demaray, the associate superintendent of the National Park service in Washington, said the Chicago office of this service would be the place to inquire for detailed information. That office had no knowledge, however, that Thomas Corcoran, the exuberant accordion minstrel of the first and second New Deals, also known as Tommy the Cork, had ever enjoyed the people's hospitality at Acadia for "a couple of weekends" as Mr. Chapman thought he had. Inquiries were referred to the superintendent of this particular park, but, much as I love my art, that is a far piece to travel for such a detail at this time of the year.

However, records in Chicago indicated that Mr. Ickes paid $100 in 1946 for use of the summer home in the park, a preserve of 22,000 acres, maintained at the common man's expense. Mr. Chapman had volunteered that he and his family spent two weeks there and the records in Chicago indicate that he paid $25, which would suggest that this beautiful furnished summer home may be had for split-months at proportionate rental.

Although the price paid by Mr. Ickes was sufficient for two months' occupancy in 1946, even after he had ceased to be secretary of the interior, there was a superstition in the Chicago office that he himself had spent only three weeks there. However, it was stated that orders were given that his presence was not to be discussed nor his privacy disturbed, so he could have been in residence when they thought he was not.

* * *

THE SUMMER HOME is near Bar Harbor, whence Mr. Ickes hired his servants, who lived off the premises. The Chicago office describes it as a ten-room house, well furnished and equipped. Mr. Chapman said it had a beautiful great living room with a fireplace, three family bedrooms, a servant's room, dining room, kitchen and bath,. a discrepancy of three rooms, but agreed that it was comfortably furnished, by the common man, of course, at a cost of $3,500.

A concessionaires' guide to the various national parks mentions no such accommodations for the common man himself, where he might disturb Mr. Ickes' meditations on measures for the uplift of this faceless clod, but two camp sites are spotted on a map issued by the department, both well apart from the house of privilege. Moreover, the booklet containing this map does not mention the secretary's secret manse away from it all

So, even though the common man paid for the brochure, containing a picture of two nestling eagles and a group of common men studying 'nature' under a park guide, some higher authority withheld information that might move the slob to ask, in his low, dumb patois, "What goes on here, anyway?"

BOARD PUTS APPROVAL ON 28 PETITIONS

All Primary Candidates Get Election Officials' OK.

It's official now. All the candidates who filed with the county board of elections petitions for the May 6 municipal primaries will see their names on the ballots unless they withdraw before the ballots are printed

The election board yesterday approved the petitions of 28 candidates, 19 of whom will have no opposition for their parties' nominations.

The eligibility of only two of the candidates was questioned and each problem was soon cleared through telephone conversations between County Prosecutor Theodore Lutz and the offices of the secretary of state and the attorney general.

S. J. Shadel, whose registration card in the board's files shows consistent Democratic voting in past primaries, was approved as a candidate for Republican sixth ward councilman. He affirmed that he changed his politics in the last general election when no declaration of party affiliation was needed.

The petition of J. L. Stover, Democratic candidate for one of the three councilman-at-large posts, showed that he did not vote for a majority of Democratic candidates in the last general election. He explained, however, that he didn't vote at all and the legal advisors held that his failure to vote was no bar to candidacy.

As it stands now Mansfield residents will be voting on only two contests for nomination in the primary. The Democrats have four candidates for the three councilman-at-large seats and the Republicans have five contenders for the same posts.

FINDLEY HOME CHANGES HANDS

Sale of the home of the late Dr. Samuel E. Findley to Arthur B. Ritzenthaler, vice president in charge of sales for the Tappan Stove company, was revealed in a deed filed in the county recorder's office today.

The house is located at 815 Marion avenue on a one-and-one-half-acre site.

Two other properties of the late physician, whose estate was appraised at $282,893, have also been sold. A building at 154-156 North Main street was purchased by Stephen S. Jordan, and a 155-acre tract in Weller township was sold to Tom Swigart.

The inventory of Dr. Findley's estate listed his holdings as $5,355 in personal goods and chattels, $6,330 in currency, $140,907 in stocks and securities, $50,200 in accounts and debts receivable, and $79,500 in real estate.

His will, dated Nov. 30, 1944, left the bulk of his estate to three brothers, Frank of McConnellsburg, Pa.; Howard of Seattle, Wash., and Emery of Peoria, Ill., and his sister, Florence Jelliff of 125 Carpenter road. The Citizens National Bank and Trust company has been appointed administrator of the estate.

Dr. Findley died last July 13.

TAPPAN SALESMEN LEARN TO COOK BEFORE GOING OUT TO SELL RANGES

By GEORGE COMINOS

Sales representatives of the Tappan Stove company have to know how to use a gas range as well as sell one.

The men learn cooking in a school conducted by the Tappan company, and after they complete the course they can prepare a pretty good meal.

During the one-week course the men work on the assembly line to learn how the gas ranges are made. In addition, they undergo a service training course.

D. S. Sharp, assistant sales manager, explained the "retail sales training" program.

The instruction is designed for three groups of sales employes: 1. To serve as a refresher course for those who had been in appliance selling before the war, but switched to other kinds of work during the war because there were no appliances to sell; 2. Newcomers to the field who have had other selling experience, but not appliance selling; 3 New sales representatives with no selling experience.

* * *

THE PROGRAM COMBINES the ideas of sales managers, business men with merchandising experience, and professional sales training people, in addition to ideas of sales representatives in the field.

When their courses here are completed the men pass the instruction on to retail salesmen in their respective territories.

Usually the course has seven or eight students A class which ended last week had four sales representatives from sales territories in the United States, one from Brazil, and one from England. Next class is scheduled for March.

Four types of sales meetings are held, Sharp explained. They are: Product, suggestions on selling, idea of the month, and complete cooking demonstration.

* * *

NEWCOMERS GO to work in the sales department. When ready they take the course before assignment to a territory. Four men now are working in the sales department until assigned to the courses.

Among the Mansfielders who have completed the course—and who can now "cook with gas" are Earl Greene and Robert Aungst, Chicago representatives, John McLaren, Georgia, Florida and Alabama; E. C ("Al") Donnan, Illinois, and H. V Miller, northern Ohio.

The service training course is under the direction of J. F. Mabee, quality control manager, and F. G. Constance, service manager.

In charge of the cooking classes is Mrs. Pauline Treisch, home service director.

The entire program is supervised by C. W. Bonar, sales training director.

BRIGGS SENT TO OHIO PEN

Robert Briggs, 28, last member of a five-man gang to face common pleas court on charges of attacking Mansfield women, was convicted of robbery and sentenced today to the Ohio penitentiary for one to 25 years.

Originally charged with armed robbery, which carries a penalty of 10 to 25 years, Briggs changed his innocent plea to guilty to an unarmed robbery charge. His attorney, George W. Biddle, then requested probation for Briggs but Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch refused it.

The judge, in passing sentence, said the state undoubtedly could have proved Briggs guilty of armed robbery. But he said the court and Prosecutor Theodore Lutz accepted the guilty plea to the lesser charge on the recommendation of Mansfield detectives who indicated Briggs aided them in convicting the other four members of the gang, two of whom are brothers of Briggs.

BITTER FIGHT DUE FOR COAL UNION LEADER

Lewis Faces Task of Getting Contract Without Hurting Labor Movement.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — John L. Lewis marked his 67th birthday today with the toughest fight of his life just ahead.

He faced the task of obtaining a new coal wage contract for his United Mine Workers (AFL) without bringing congressional wrath down on the whole organized labor movement.

With a stormy 26-year career behind him as head of the UMW, the bushy-browed Lewis on this anniversary was confronted with a complex battle, the outcome of which could affect history's evaluation of him as a labor leader.

* * *

Court Decision Near.

The supreme court will rule shortly on the legality of $3,510,000 in fines imposed upon him and his union for last November's strike in defiance of government and court orders. The decision could weaken labor's protection from injunctions under the Norris-LaGuardia Act. Or it could lead congress into amending that law so the federal government would be exempt from its provisions. Either would be a setback to labor unions.

After the court decision, Lewis will seek a new wage contract with the soft coal industry to replace his present agreement with Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug. He appeared to be pretty closely "boxed in" in this task, in the eyes of the most optimistic observers.

The coal industry has asked congress to outlaw Lewis' demands for a health and welfare fund financed by a royalty—currently five cents a ton; unionization of supervisors and a closed shop. Union lawyers contend that such legislation would weaken many existing labor contracts.

Forney Johnston, special counsel for the National Coal association, told the house labor committee yesterday that the industry will refuse to pay the "economic blackmail" of a tonnage royalty even if it means a new strike when the government returns the mines to private owners.

* * *

Fears Labor Laws.

If Lewis strikes to win his demands, almost all of organized labor fears that the Republican-controlled congress will move swiftly to pass laws imposing sweeping restrictions upon most union activities, including the right to strike.

Lewis was celebrating his birthday somewhere in the South while upwards of 100,000 members of his union observed the anniversary as a holiday under the terms of new contracts negotiated last year. They include all of the 72,000 miners in Pennsylvania's anthracite fields and other workers covered by contracts of District 50 unions.

PAIR CAPTURED IN MEAT MARKET

Captured by police early today in Jack's market, 544½ Daisy street, James Thompson and Nan Ella King, both of rear of 544 Daisy street, were charged with breaking and entering and attempted theft of $20.80 worth of meat.

The pair pleaded innocent to the charges at a hearing in municipal court today and bond was set at $2,000 each. The case was continued until Monday.

Police said the defendants were captured in the market about 12:30 a. m. Jack Marshall, owner of the store, said Thompson and the King woman attempted to steal pork, beef, bacon, sausage, steaks and other cuts.

Ashland Man Hurt In Crash

Lewis H. Russell, 219 West Main street, Ashland, was reported in "fair condition" today at General hospital, after the car he was driving collided on Ashland hill last night with another auto driven by Albert C. Bush, Mansfield, R. D. 4.

State highway patrolmen said that Russell has been cited to appear in municipal court for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Russell was reported to have received face and head injuries.

TYGERS GET HOT TO DEFEAT LORAIN, 45 TO 36

Cuff Stuff

By Fred Tharp

FRED THARP,
SPORTS EDITOR,
DEAR SIR:

Have to hurry to get this written before they name the new Ohio coach. I rise to the bait of your statement in Sunday's paper regards Ohio State being a coaches graveyard—particularly "but the records bear it out." We don't seem to be looking at the same set of records.

Since Ohio State grew up that is since their entry into the Western Conference (I do not see how any comparison can be made on any other basis), they have had six coaches. In any discussion of football Notre Dame comes up sooner or later. The Irish have had eight coaches over that span of years.

Getting back to the Big Nine or Ten, my story is that Ohio is tied for third place in the conference as regards the least number of changes of head coaching personnel since 1912.

School	Changes
Chicago	2
Illinois	2
Ohio State	6
Michigan	6
Northwestern	6
Minnesota	7
Indiana	8
Iowa	9
Purdue	9
Wisconsin	10

Wisconsin had a change each year for four years once and Purdue recently had three in three years. I doubt if any of them had three coaches quit in three years when they were under no pressure to do so.

I will always feel that Sam Willaman got a raw deal, but I believe the teams since have been more interesting.

I can go along with you that coaching (anywhere) is a hazardous occupation, but why single out Ohio? If State is a graveyard, what words are there to describe those other schools in the bottom of the above table?

Yours truly,
Richard W. Parsons.

* * *

MR. PARSONS' table of Western Conference football coaching changes is very interesting . . . However, I still insist that Ohio State is and has been regarded as a graveyard of coaching ever since Dr. John Wilce concluded his 16 year coaching span in 1928 . . . He had lost six in a row to Michigan before knocking off the Wolves, 19 to 7, in '28 . . . Willaman held the coaching reins 'til the 1933 season ended.

Sad Sam lost only two games in his last two years, both to Michigan, and retired under pressure . . . Then in came the late Francis (Shut the Gates of Mercy) Schmidt.

The colorful razzle-dazzle exponent did not have a losing season in seven years but he did lose three years in a row to Michigan . . . Enter Paul Brown . . . Pee had two fine seasons and then the war-weakened Bucks lost six of nine games in 1943 . . . It was State's first losing season since 1924 . . . Of course, Paul might have still been at Ohio if a war and Art D. Brodie's experience book hadn't come along . . . The '47 coaching outlook is third in the conference . . . That is about par for college coaching the past . . .

* * *

THIS COLUMN hereby presents a table to substantiate the 'graveyard theory . . . Since 1936 Ohio State has compiled the best won-lost record in the Western Conference

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Ohio State	56	20	3	.730
Michigan	51	29	3	.677
Illinois	47	32	2	.633
Northwestern	37	38	6	.451
Indiana	26	46	2	.364
Purdue	26	46	2	.364
Wisconsin	26	46	2	.364
Iowa	25	47	2	.351
Minnesota	23	47	3	.337
Total	301	351	25	.462
Ohio opponents	351	301	25	.538

* * *

NOW LETS examine the number of coaches these same schools have had in those 11 years the farthest back complete records are immediately at hand. The last parenthesis in each case gives the number of seasons the present or last coach served:

Ohio State—Schmidt, Brown, Waddoes, Paul Bixler (1).
Michigan—Kipke, Crisler (9).
Minnesota—Bierman (11 years except for war service).
Northwestern—Waldorf (11).
Indiana—McMillin (12).
Purdue—Kizer (retired because of ill health), Elward, Burnham (retired after winning nine straight in 1943), Isbell (3, retiring to coach pro football).
Illinois—Zuppke, Eliot (4).
Wisconsin—Stuhldreher (11).
Iowa—Solem, Tubbs, Anderson (6 except for war service).
Chicago—quit intercollegiate football 8 years ago.

CLOSING DRIVE NETS 8 POINTS, 12TH TRIUMPH

Mansfield Senior high basketeers caught fire in the final 70 seconds last night to defeat a stubborn Lorain Steelmen aggregation, 45 to 36, in the Tyger lair.

Ollie Cline ignited the pyrotechnics with the score standing at 37 to 36. He stole the ball and dribbled the length of the floor to cage an easy bunny shot. Tommy Bloor got two on one-handers from the sidelines and Ralph Majors picked up the fourth basket in the 70 seconds stretch on a fast-break.

* * *

Slip Into Lethargy.

Except for the first four minutes of the contest and the hot streak, the Tygers suffered a partial hangover from the lethargy that had enveloped them in their last two starts. Coach Vern Hoffman's lads got hot in streaks to take their 12th victory in 13 games.

However, from here on in the Bengals must be at their best all of the time. They travel to Massillon Friday night and then conclude the regular season Feb. 21 against Canton McKinley on the Mansfield court. After that comes the district tournament at Sandusky.

The Bengal passing was out of this world in the first four minutes resulting in a 9 to 2 Mansfield advantage. Three of the baskets came on fast breaks that were spiced by fine passing and the other came on a one-hander by Chuck Sisco. Ralph Majors, Tommy Bloor and Nick Gagich got the fast break connections for Mansfield. Sisco had opened the scoring with a foul.

Lorain cut the advantage to 13 to 8 at the quarter and then spurted in the second canto after the Tygers had gained an 18 to 13 advantage. The Bengals tied the count at the half, 22 to 22 and assumed a 35 to 31 lead as the final chukker got under way.

* * *

Lorain Cuts Lead.

Mansfield still led 37 to 33 at the officials' time-out midway in the last stanza but Dick Pheil's rebound connection and a free throw by George Simonovich shoed the margin to one point. That set the stage for the torrid Tyger closing performance.

Simonovich, a fellow with a flair for ball-handling and shot artistry, stole the show several times and easily ended up as the game's leading point man. He had 17 markers himself and set up three additional field goals for his colleagues.

Majors' backboard technique was again one of the Bengal features and "The Whip" led the Bengal point producing for the first time this season. He notched 11 markers to nip Gagich, who had 10. All of Nick's points came in the first half.

Accurate gratis tossing by Coach Ed Cinninger's lads kept them in the running. Lorain made eight of 14 free throws while Mansfield connected only three times in 13 tries.

Park Avenue, Ontario Lead 'Y' Cage Loop

Ontario Community and Park Avenue Baptist shoed into first place in the YMCA Senior church league in games played last night on the "Y" court.

Ontario pushed St. Luke's out of the driver's seat with a second half rally and then went on to win, 32 to 26. St. Luke had led the league with five wins in six games while Ontario and the Baptists shared second with five victories and two defats.

Park Avenue piled up an early margin to use the First Lutheran quintet 15 to 17. The Baptists were in the van at the intermission point 11 to 5, 21 to 10 and 21 to 14.

Ontario broke 9 to 9 first-quarter tie to lead St. Luke's at the half, 18 to 11. Score at the three-quarter mark favored Ontario, 27 to 21.

With Bill Mohr and Dave Richards combining for 26 points, First Presbyterian slaughtered Mayflower Congregational, 47 to 26. The Presbyterians led at the half, 19 to 7.

MacPhail Made Big Bid For Cardinal Players

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— President Larry MacPhail, of the New York Yankees, offered to gamble $150,000 last May that he could talk three Cardinal stars out of their plans to jump to the Mexican league, owner Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals said today.

Breadon said that MacPhail offered him that amount for Max Lanier, Lou Klein and Fred Martin, after they left the Cardinals at New York and headed for Mexico.

Breadon said he turned down the telephoned offer even though MacPhail said "he'd take all the chances and I'd get the $150,000 even if they went to Mexico and stayed there."

"I told him that they were either going to play for me or they weren't going to play at all in the major leagues," Breadon said.

The three players completed the season with the Mexican league. They were last reported playing winter ball with the Cuban professional league.

BUDDY YOUNG IS SUSPENDED

CHICAGO —(INS)— Claude "Buddy" Young, former University of Illinois athletic star, was under one-year suspension today as an amateur.

Young learned this for the first time last night when he sought permission to play with some of his Chicago south side pals in a Central AAU basketball tournament.

The Central AAU registration committee told Young it had been informed by Dan Ferris, executive secretary of the National AAU that he had been barred because he solicited employment for his athletic services.

Ferris said this action was a result of the fleet Negro halfback's recent trip to California to play in an exhibition professional football game which eventually was cancelled.

AAU officials said Young can regain his amateur status if he spurns professional offers during his suspension.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

THE PLEASANT SURPRISE

The barriers of yesterday
No longer may be in the way.
—Old Mother Nature.

Temptation had proved too much for Yowler the Bobcat. Yes, sir, it had so. He was on his way to the "yard" trodden out in the deep snow in the Green Forest by Lightfoot the Deer and his family. The snow was packed enough for Yowler to get around on it easily. He didn't have to wade and plunge as he would have had to do in light, soft snow. But while the broad pads of his feet would carry him over the snow the sharp hoofs of the Deer cut through, so they had to stay in the paths they had kept trodden out, crossing and re-crossing among the food trees and bushes which were their only food. A maze of paths like this trodden by Deer is called a "yard."

"Probably I'm wasting time," said Yowler to himself. "Lightfoot is almost sure to be hanging around with the others, and I don't want anything to do with him. He has too many sharp points on his head. Just the sight of those sharp points makes me shiver, and not with cold. If only he was like Mrs. Lightfoot, without those fighting points on his head, I would be less afraid of him."

As Yowler drew near the Deer yard he crouched low and moved forward slowly, trying to keep behind or under overhanging boughs of trees so as not to be seen by the Deer. Presently he climbed a tree, a big hemlock among whose branches he was well hidden. Peering out he could see over almost half of one end of that yard. Just one person was to be seen there. At first he thought it was Mrs. Lightfoot. Then those sharp eyes of his noticed two bare spots on the head. This wasn't Mrs. Lightfoot, but Lightfoot himself without those feared points on his head.

"Mrs. Lightfoot and the children must be in another part of the yard that I can't see from here," thought Yowler. "If Lightfoot will stay where he is I may be able to get a dinner after all."

Just then Lightfoot laid down. It was plain that he feared no danger either to himself or the others. Slowly, careful to make no sound, Yowler backed down that tree.

The big Cat circled around, keeping under cover. Two or three times he crawled to the edge of the yard but could see only a small part of it. Once Blacky the Crow stopped in the top of a tall tree and Yowler crouched without moving as long as Blacky remained. He knew that should Blacky get so much as a glimpse of him he would give the alarm and tell all within hearing just where Yowler was.

"If I can get near enough to leap on Mrs. Lightfoot before she knows I am about the rest will be easy. But I must do it before old Lightfoot decides to join them. Finding him with his head bare of those sharp fighting points has been a pleasant surprise. Yes, sir, it has so."

The next story: "A Sight for Hungry Eyes."

—By Bennet Cerf

An old Italian who was blessed with that certain spark that distinguishes a great merchant decided to open a shoeshine stand near the Hudson river ferries.

His friends did all they could to dissuade him, pointing out that there were already six shoeshine emporiums in that self-same locality. "I fix," said the little Italian—and did.

Within two weeks, five times as many patrons were filling his little stand as all his competitors could muster together. His method of advertising did the trick for him. Directly over his stand was a sign with big red letters that read: "One shoe shined free."

Somebody once told Gypsy Rose Lee that a Yale graduating class had placed her second to Ann Sheridan in a campus popularity poll. "What do you think of Sheridan?" a malicious reporter asked Gypsy.

Sheridan?" a malicious reporter ly. "I think he was a swell general."

The Hiroshima atomic bomb demolished four square miles of buildings and left another three square miles uninhabitable.

SHELBY GROUP MAILS BALLOTS ON PARK PLAN

Business Club Seeks Opinion on Controversial Issue.

SHELBY—Approximately 2,500 ballots were being placed in the mail today by the Shelby Better Business club to determine by a referendum whether residents here and from the near-by rural area favored parking meters for downtown streets in Shelby.

The action was taken by the board of directors of the club after first reading of a parking meter ordinance was approved by city council. The ordinance will come up for its second reading at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the council next Monday night at city hall.

Forrest Ellis, Shelby hardware dealer and president of the business club, said he did not think parking meters are the answer to the parking problems

"This city has not made enough of an effort to find parking space for trading people," he said "We must be interested in getting people into the city not in driving them away because we have no free parking for them

* * *

Favors Central Park

"Let us turn Central park into a parking lot, if the board of education is willing to turn it over to the city for municipal purposes. That would be better than constructing a public rest room in the middle of it that might have to be torn down later if the city ever decides to build a city hall there," Ellis said

"Central park is no asset to the city as it is now It certainly is not beautified. If it's revenue the city wants, let's convert Central park into a parking lot and charge for parking cars there."

* * *

Berkley Opposes.

First opposition toward parking meters came at the last council sessino when the first reading of the ordinance was approved.

M E Berkley, candidate for mayor at the May primaries and former Better Business club president, told the council that he had been asked to appear in behalf of directors of the club to protest the parking meter plan.

He pointed out that almost any time of the day anyone could go up Main street and find most of the parking space unused He claimed the revenue would not pay for the upkeep and cost of the meters

* * *

Motor Makers Begin Trying To Slash Production Costs

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(AP Automotive Editor)

DETROIT —(AP)— Seeking to avoid further price increases—and a consequent lessening of its overall market—the automobile industry is giving more than ordinary attention right now to every item of production cost.

It is a normal practice in the industry to thoroughly scrutinize the cost of everything from cotter pins to transmissions, but with a lot of uncertainties ahead in the matter of wages, the manufacturers are screening all expense factors more finely than ever.

Not so many months ago the heads of the purchasing divisions were ready to pay almost any price for certain critical items; there still are critical items—critical at least in the drive for 500,000-car and truck output monthly—but the procurement chiefs are reported to be challenging the price of everything going into current models.

Moreover, the heads of several car companies have been in conference recently with top executives of a number of their major suppliers seeking downward price adjustments.

But the suppliers, too, are concerned about wage increases they may have to make within the next few weeks and price reductions do not appeal to them at the moment.

Industry Worried.

All this activity, of course, means that despite the currently reported huge backlog of unfilled orders, the industry has begun to worry about how long demand will hold up. It repeatedly has been said in automotive trade quarters that unfilled orders on hand amount to about 5,000,000 and that the demand exceeds the industry's production capacity for the year ahead.

That view easily could be disproved, however, if the assembly plants cut loose, as is currently indicated, within the next few months

Orders may be piling up faster than they are being filled, but barring an extended work stoppage in one of the major units of the industry that will not be true by midsummer. Also, the validity of many of the orders on hand is being challenged in some industry quarters.

On the basis of present indications only a prolonged labor dispute in the automobile or one of the basic industries can prevent the production this year of more than 4,000,000 passenger cars and 1,000,000 commercial vehicles.

That volume of production might make price reductions possible; if prices remain unchanged and more than 4,000,000 new passenger cars are delivered the backlog of unfilled orders will be pretty well thinned out in the lower as well as the medium priced fields.

Demand Still Heavy.

Sales chiefs in the lower-price car field insist uniformly that they will not be able to get enough vehicles this year to meet demand. In some of the other brackets industry spokesmen talk about orders on hand sufficient to keep the assembly lines rolling for from 12 to 18 months.

In most instances they qualify this assertion by adding "at the current rate of production." The current production rate, of course, is considerably below the level the car makers expect to reach within the next few months.

Thus, if high prices continue to slow down demand and a sustained period of high volume production is attained, the merchandising division may have to begin "selling" automobiles—instead of merely delivering them—a lot sooner than was indicated a few months ago

BUCYRUS LIONS NAME ZEIGLER

BUCYRUS—Robert C. Zeigler, Bucyrus printer and past president of the Bucyrus Lions club, was nominated as deputy district governor of District 6-D, Central Ohio Lions, when the association met here over the week-end.

Three hundred and fifty visiting Lions were present for the district meeting which was highlighted by a noon meal Sunday at Holy Trinity parochial school, at which Tennyson Guyer, well known Ohio public speaker, gave the address.

Morning speakers were Ralph Blaney, international counselor of Old Fort, whose talk favored higher pay for teachers, Guy Bretlinger of Lima, who reviewed the growth of the Lions organization in recent years and Walter Cline of Toledo, whose talk concerned plans for the state convention in Toledo and the international convention in San Francisco.

A tea at the YMCA Sunday afternoon for wives of visiting Lions was given by wives of Bucyrus members.

EVEN COWS SNORE AT MODEL FARM OPERATED BY CHURCH IN MISSOURI

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

CENTRALIA, Mo. —(U.P.)— One of the most fertile farms in fertile Missouri. The most modern of buildings. One of the finest dairy herds in these parts. Chickens which outlay those of the neighbors, who have pretty fine chickens. Even a lounging room for cows. And all cared for by a bunch of 'teen-aged kids.

These things, and more, add up to a place near here called "Sunnydale Academy," an unique school founded outside of Centralia last fall.

THE SHOW-PLACE originally was owned by A. B. Chance, a Centralia millionaire, who would rather sponsor education than blooded cattle. There are 863 acres on the "ranch" and Chance, who dumped $50,000 into improvements last year alone, almost "gave it" to the present owners—cow barns, ranch house, dairy herd and all—for $70,000. The school buildings are occupied, but are still in the process of completion.

The farm now is operated by the Missouri conference of Seventh Day Adventists as a co-educational rural school, whose motto is to improve the head, heart and hand through work in the classroom, worship in the chapel and plowing the corn rows.

H. C. Hartman, superintendent and manager, who took this correspondent for a tour of the acres, admits quite frankly that the school operates for profit.

TO PROVE his point, Hartman brought out his ledgers, which showed that the dairy income from a herd of Holsteins and Guernseys amounts to $1,200 a month.

Among the 13 modern buildings are two huge dormitories, appointed with lounges, recreation halls, fireplaces, and sleeping rooms, which house the 118 boys and girls.

The students are expected to help earn their keep, since the modest tuition of $44 per month includes room, laundry—and all the kids can eat. Each student is assigned between 12 and 20 hours of work per week and gets academic credit for helping to prepare the food, washing the dishes and clothes, milking the cows, pasteurizing the milk, and tilling the fields.

MEALTIME IS a time for relaxation and the normal folksy chitchat you'll find at any academy where boys and girls study and work together. The students eat no meat, drink no coffee or tea. They live on a vegetable diet and from all appearances seem to thrive on it.

The most interesting thing about the place to this old farmhand was that lounging room for cows. When we stopped by that barn three bossies (left to right, Rose, Violet and Martha) were lounging. The steam heat was turned on, and the lights were low.

It was the first time I knew a cow could snore. .

NEW 'DAHLIA' SUSPECT HELD

Police Work on Theory Same Person Committed 2 Los Angeles Murders.

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — Los Angeles police today held George H. Whitt, 40, for questioning in connection with the murder of Jeanne Axford French and the grisly Black Dahlia case.

Whitt, who gave his home as Palm Springs, Calif., was held on a technical charge of suspicion of robbery. He was arrested in a Venice boulevard bar—the same bar Mrs. French visited the night of her murder.

In Same Bar.

Police declared that Whitt, his face cut and bruised, had been observed in the bar the night of the slain woman's visit.

Frank French, 47, her husband, still was in custody, but Homicide Captain Jack Donahoe declared he no longer is a "good suspect."

Donahoe disclosed police are pursuing the theory the captivating brunette's murder may have been the werk of the Black Dahlia slayer.

Autopsy reports showed the actress was deeply intoxicated, her blood containing .30 alcohol, and she had eaten chop suey within an hour of her death.

Donahoe conjectured that the Black Dahlia slayer may have resented the "confession" of Corporal Joseph Dumais of Fort Dix, N. J., and murdered Mrs. French to disprove the soldier's claims.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Homicide detectives have crossed the name of Corp. Joseph Dumais, Fort Dix, N. J., military policeman, from the list of suspects in the Elizabeth Short mutilation-murder case, and written off his reported admission as another in the series of false leads which have beclouded investigation of the slaying.

Capt. Jack Donahoe of the police homicide detail said he had "unimpeachable evidence" that Dumais, who "confessed" the slaying during a "mental blackout," was at his New Jersey base at 5 p. m. Jan. 15, only seven hours after discovery of the "Black Dahlia's" body.

GALION PLANT TO CUT POWER

GALION—Installation of a new economizer at the Galion Municipal light and power plant next week will require light and power consumers to conserve electricity for several days.

Plans are to install the economizer on days which will include a Saturday and Sunday, thereby taking two days when industrial production will not have to be curtailed. The installation work will take about four to six days to complete.

The $75,000 improvement will complete installation of units which were contracted for two years ago, but which have been postponed because of post-war conditions.

Cost of the economizer is $38,457, while the balance of the $75,000 is for piping, and other necessary units. While the work is being done, the third and largest boiler at the plant will be cut off, reducing production of power about 50 per cent.

New Pipeline Would Boost Mansfield's Gas Supply

A second request within a week to construct a gas pipeline which would ease the gas shortage in the Mansfield area, today was submitted to the Federal Power Commission in Washington.

Today's request, submitted by the Ohio Fuel Gas company and the United Fuel Gas company of Charleston, W. Va., was for a line from Ceredo, W. Va., to a compressor station in Fairfield county, O.

The companies told the FPC they expected the line to provide an additional 51,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day to the compressor station to meet additional requirements of Ohio.

Construction of such a line would aid the Mansfield area, G. K. Schooler, manager of the Mansfield office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, said.

He pointed out that "the line would aid all communities in Ohio since all gas transmission lines are tied together in one system throughout Ohio." Last week the Memphis Texas Natural Gas company applied for permission to construct a pipeline from Texas to Pittsburgh, which would supply the Mansfield area.

Lincoln Really 'Belongs to the Ages'

NO MORE confidence-inspiring thought as to the innate honesty that underlies a surface appearance of lowered standards and failing faith is likely to be found than in the determination with which millions of Americans hold to the principles and practices of Abraham Lincoln as ideals toward which this nation is striving.

This anniversary of the birth of Lincoln finds an increased, rather than a diminishing interest in the things that he did and the accomplishments toward which he aimed.

This interest is forcefully brought to notice by the number and quality of new Lincoln books that have been deemed worthy of publication, including "The Lincoln Reader" by Mansfield-born Paul M. Angle, who is now director of the Chicago Historical Society, after having spent a number of years in Springfield, Ill., in historical research work.

The bibliography on various phases of Lincoln's life is already stupendous, yet there is a constant demand for more, and one reviewer, W. E. Hall, asserts that "better and more interesting books about Lincoln are being written all the time." He says: "Paul M. Angle has done an outstanding work with The Lincoln Reader. It presents an amazingly and beautifully knit literary afghan. The life story is told with selections from the best known writers about Lincoln from Herndon, Nicolay and Hay to Sandburg and Randall."

Many regret that the Richland County Lincoln Society, which sponsored an annual Lincoln's birthday banquet, was permitted to lapse, but those who were active in its organization and maintenance have passed on and no successors appeared to carry on the work. Older Mansfielders and Richland county residents will recall Lincoln banquets at which men of national prominence were speakers—and the widespread interest in these events, at which attendance was always up to the capacity of available meeting places.

Whatever other outstanding figures in American history may be neglected in the education of young people of successive generations, every encouragement should be given each of them to learn as much as possible about Lincoln, for, possibly above all others, he is most likely to inspire the development of qualities that best represent the requisites of true Americanism.

Licensing of Race Bookies Proposed

PROPOSAL by Representative Kenneth W. Thornton, of Cuyahoga county, to license race horse bookie operators, appears to go either too far or not far enough. If this form of gambling is to be legalized, what about the other commercialized gambling rackets in which some people prefer to lose their money?

There's the "numbers" racket, for instance, which thrives mightily without the state getting a cut-in on the fabulous profits of operators, and there are the dozens of big and little commercialized gambling resorts which provide "easy money" sources for their promoters.

Then there's always the opening for a big-time state lottery, which is rather frequently suggested but always frowned upon by all except a handful of legislators. Why should all of these opportunities for licensing and taxing be disregarded if bookie joints are to be legalized?

The idea, as poured into the legislative hopper in Columbus, is to charge $5,000 a year for a bookie license, and to limit such licenses to each 10,000 population—which would allow four in Mansfield . . . quite a change from the local police department idea that one such place is sufficient, and that any effort to open a second one is to be promptly squelched.

Reaction of the legislature to Representative Thornton's proposal will be watched with interest—as Ohio's legislative and administrative attitude heretofore seems to have favored ignoring anti-gambling laws rather than repealing them.

Valentine Day's Changing Modes

REMEMBER when you were in school and about this time of year the teacher passed out sheets of red paper and white ink or chalk? It was up to you to trace and cut out a heart and laboriously letter the words "To my Valentine."

Of course, all the time you were doing it you were thinking about the little girl in the front row, with the golden curls and the sky-blue eyes. And you wondered if you would have the courage to sign your name and slip the valentine into her desk.

Then the way it turned out was that all the other fellows in the room had the same idea and the girls all gave their neatly-made billets doux to that handsome new guy with the black wavy hair.

After a few years you found out it didn't matter so much, because you married the swellest gal in the world anyhow. And now at the last minute you remember "Friday's Valentine day." You pop into the nearest stationery store and buy a missive all neatly printed. Or maybe it's too late for the mail so you call the florist and send out some roses.

In the paper it says: "The old fashioned valentines are back with all their lace and satin and sentiment." You think: "My Gosh. I forgot to read the verse on the inside." But that's all right. Your wife knows whose valentine she is. One day doesn't tell the story. It's the other 364 she has to live with you—without a rose or a billet doux!

"It Might Be Worse" department: "One United States dollar is worth as much as 17,500 Chinese dollars."

LINCOLN

By ANNE CAMPBELL

Upon the altar many candles burn,
Some flickering, some with a steady light.
One flame alone will not burn out. We yearn
Toward its warm steadiness in our deep night.

Life's altar, too, holds countless votive flames,
Some falter upward briefly, then go out.
There are not many whose immortal names
Help us when plunged in misery and doubt.

But one there was who tied his earthly glow
To heaven's fire with such celestial might,
Never since he was martyred long ago
Has he been hidden from our longing sight.

We see him plainly when our road grows dark.
When all our dreams are fading, our hopes dim:
And guided by the never-failing spark
Of his great spirit, light our way by him.

THE ROAD THAT LINCOLN TRAVELED

Negro General Cordially Greeted By Marshall at the White House

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—During the reconstruction days following Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation, Negroes frequently were invited to the White House.

After this there was a lapse, and the question of White House entertainment seldom arose until the days of Herbert Hoover, who invited Oscar De Priest, colored GOP congressman from Chicago, to tea.

This caused a tremendous furor, and, significantly, it was largely congressmen from the party of Abraham Lincoln who made the most comment.

Since then, Mrs. Roosevelt frequently invited colored guests to the White House and the Trumans have done the same. No longer is there public comment, but it remains a fact that a lone Negro guest frequently looks conspicuous and ill-at-ease.

Such was the case when President and Mrs. Truman entertained for the armed forces last week.

As the president and the First Lady made their grand entry down the main staircase, a large assemblage of three-and four-star generals plus the highest admirals in the navy stood on either side. General Eisenhower, the chief of staff, and Admiral Nimitz, the highest ranking officer of the navy, were in the group, together with every other general and admiral stationed in Washington. It was the greatest conglomeration of silver stars and gold braid Washington has seen in decades.

On the fringe of this glittering constellation stood Brig. Gen. B. O. Davis—the one Negro general in the United States Army.

Seeing him, the new secretary of state, General George Marshall, left the presidential party, ignored General Eisenhower, passed by Admiral Nimitz, paid no attention to all the admirals and three- and four-star generals, while he shook hands with General Davis.

Many others in the room would have given their eyeteeth to have been singled out by the most colorful and famous member of the Truman cabinet. They watched as Marshall greeted Davis.

After Marshall broke the ice, various others, led by Congressman Paul Kilday of San Antonio, Texas, stepped forward to shake hands with the Negro general.

Note—Col. B. O. Davis, jr., son of General Davis, is an aviator, now commanding Lockbourne Army air Base, Lockbourne, Ohio.

Instalment Buying.

Commodore Jake Vardaman, President Truman's ex-naval aide, now elevated to a lush $14,000 job on the federal reserve board, is waging a hot campaign—indirectly aimed at Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles—to lift all credit controls on instalment buying.

Vardaman, who once euchred himself into the position of getting 10 per cent extra seagoing pay while attached to the White House and comfortably sleeping on dry land, and who ordered navy enlisted men to paint and repair his home, is a minority of one on the reserve board. Other members feel that inflation is by no means over and some control over instalment buying must be retained.

At present there is no restriction on goods purchased for less than $50. But credit controls still apply to instalment purchases of autos, furniture, floor coverings, and major household appliances, such as refrigerators and washing machines.

Instalment purchasers of such goods costing up to $2,000 must pay a third down and the remainder within 12 months, except for floor coverings and furniture which have a 15-month maturity.

Aside from Vardaman, other members of the federal reserve board feel that these controls against inflation should remain in effect unless congress acts to the contrary.

Gov. Warren's Hurdle.

Gov. Earl Warren of California will be forced to take or refuse a significant political hurdle when he testifies before the house appropriations subcommittee of the interior department tomorrow.

Gov. Warren will be cross-examined on the dynamite-laden question of restricting to 160 acres the land any one person can own of a government reclamation area. All the big land interests of California are opposing this restriction. They want to be able to hold more than 160 acres of government-reclaimed land.

On the other hand, thousands of war veterans anxious to obtain small farms of their own want the 160-acre limit retained. The other day, 15,000 people applied for 84 new farmsteads in the Klamath Valley, Ore. Finally 3,000 veterans were sifted out of the 15,000 applicants, and the competition was so keen that, in the end, lots were drawn to see who would be the lucky 84.

The interior department contends that when the U. S. government pays the cost of reclaiming land, the amount held by any one person should be limited. Otherwise, the land, improved at the expense of all the taxpayers, would all fall into the hands of big ranchers.

Note—What will make Gov. Warren's decision difficult is the fact that his close friend, Senator Knowland, whom he appointed to the senate, has introduced a bill abolishing the 160-acre limitation.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Feb. 12, 1927.

"Divorce day" was observed in common pleas court, with four cases disposed of by Judge Galbraith.

Miss Vera Bletz and Houston Winningham were married by Rev. Henry C. Roehner.

Sixty foreign-born residents were studying English in Friendly House classes.

Everett Kerr was elected president of Ohio Young Men's association at conference here

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Smith, 128 North Adams street.

Franklin Ackerman and Thomas Rife were initiated into Sigma Chi fraternity at Denison

Jacob Deems, 87, Civil war veteran, died at the home of his daughter in Lexington.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On February 12, 1912, three Chinese edicts were made public announcing the abdication of the throne in favor of the republic.

IT LOOKS to me, the more I study it, as if that Mr. Clemens pottery affair had at last presented a case with so much double talk in it that the judge got as confused as the lawyers, witnesses and innocent bystanders.

Farmer's Diary: "Co-operatively Speaking."

AT Christmastime, a Florida reader of this column sent me an inspiring calendar, with classic quotations that seem to illuminate a trend.

1—"There is one thing stronger than all the armies of the world, and that is an idea whose time has come"—Voltaire

2—"A new relationship of men and nations is already beginning its slow but sure evolution. Its name is BROTHERHOOD, its method, CO-OPERATION."—Prime Minister William Mackenzie King, of Canada.

3—"God, give us the fortitude to endure the things which cannot be changed; and the courage to change the things which should be changed, and the wisdom to know one from the other"—Bishop Oliver J. Hart

4—"The beginning is the chiefest part of any work."—Plato.

* * *

THE Co-operative idea is not new to farmers. They have always depended upon neighborly help-one-another methods, as a matter of course, when a job was too big for one man, or one family to tackle.

In the 1920's when the government encouraged farmers to help themselves — for the depression hit farms before it hit anywhere else — the farmer-owned and farmer-controlled co-operatives began building their own markets and buying their own elevators. So the farmers got into business. And they haven't done badly. By lowering costs of processing, marketing and purchasing they have helped to increase distribution of goods.

As to whether co-ops are here to stay—what do you think?

* * *

JUST yesterday a new magazine came in my mail. It is called '47 and it is the first co-operative authors' magazine . . . that is, the first issue of the first magazine to be owned and controlled by leading writers, artists and photographers.

It holds that an "ever expanding philosophy" is essential to mankind's survival. It has no advertising. It is independent in its search for the right answers and "under no pressure to hand down institutionalized ideas."

Among the names of 300 stockholders I read, Raymond Gram Swing, Pearl S. Buck, Walter Lippmann, Margaret Culkin Banning, Robert St. John . . . and there's a piece in it about George Washington, who was, you know, a good farmer. Bon voyage, '47!

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

THERE are reports that Paul McNutt is returning from the Philippines about March 15 . . . arriving just in time for the Democratic sweepstakes.

Older readers will remember Mr. McNutt as the man who started to run for nomination in 1940 and wound up in the Pacific addressing palm trees.

* * *

Paul could have almost any job he wanted except the nomination. . . . He was a hot candidate in a cool year.

* * *

But the weather has changed and it might be more to his liking now if he's interested. . . . If he isn't he must have changed.

If he runs, remember I told you first. If he doesn't forget it. I shall try to do the same.

Careless Disclosure Of Secrets Feared.

WASHINGTON — Certain aspects of the current atomic bomb spy investigation may strike closer home, in a personal way, to many a private citizen across the country than he now realizes.

If he served in the army or navy as an officer in the war just past, he may find his civilian comments and correspondence suddenly curtailed.

Reported leakage of atomic secrets through key state department and military sources has a lot of people worried here in Washington nowadays. Right or wrong, the reports carry a deadly implication.

As yet, there isn't a great deal the state department can do legally to guard against such leakage—other than invoke treason laws—except depend on the carefully-checked patriotism of its personnel.

There is, however, considerable talk that the current session of congress may erect a few more specific legal barriers against loose-tongued tendencies on the part of men and women who accept state department responsibilities.

For the most part, such capital conversation more or less assumes that such new legislation would include military personnel as well as diplomatic employes. But, in the meantime, the upper bracket brass in the army and navy isn't waiting around to see what congress can concoct to combat the atomic leakage crisis.

In the Pentagon Building and the navy department, top officials responsible for safeguarding vital military secrets tell you quite frankly they now are fretting about possible leakages through the writings of retired officers.

They admit from the outset that their fears center mostly in so-called "public writings," but they're not overlooking private correspondence and comments. In traditional terse understatement, the Army and Navy Bulletin explained in its latest issue:

"They (the officials) emphasize they have no objections to expressions of personal views on political, military or international matters—but fear that incidental allusions may be used by smart foreign counter-intelligence agents to deduce information . . ."

You might assume, from the bulletin's ensuing sentence, that the average ex-officer has no reason to fret, for it says:

"Continued military jurisdiction over retired officers applies in general only to regulars, not to those who served in a reserve or similar capacity during the war."

But while that might be true in general, it isn't at all true when you get specific—as any questionable case would be certain to get, if it concerned any military secret.

Regardless of his regular, reserve or otherwise capacity, a retired army officer, for instance, is subject to at least a couple of provisions.

One is contained in a well-known army circular which tells all retired military personnel that they "are responsible for the security and propriety of articles prepared by them." In words of one syllable, the circular thus says that to violate that security would lay the individual open to treason charges under war department regulations.

Any way you cut it, it comes out "court martial!"

The second such provision is contained in a section of the United States code which states that retired officers are "at all times subject to the rules and articles of war and any disciplinary action for breach thereof." And this provision permits the army to bring a retired officer to court martial without even first ordering him back to active duty!

Boys and girls, have you read the articles of war lately? If you haven't, let me remind you that they cover almost everything—and leave you about as many loopholes as a lethal gas chamber.

That sore of thought strikes close home. Even an ex-war correspondent, who struggled against the technicality of being an "assimilated" (the GI's usually said "accumulated") officer, suddenly realizes that, merely in sounding such a warning as this, he's risking being hoist by his own petard.

What have I been saying!

Timely Editorial

Females Who Swear.

To curse or to faint. That's the question modern women must face. And if they take the advice of an expert, they'll faint. Cussing is dangerous for a woman and may lead to a black eye.

Noting an increase in profanity among women, Dr. James F. Bender of the National Institute of Human Relations, warns girls that they may force the men to forget to say "sweet nothings" and may encourage the males to forget they are gentlemen—even to the extent of delivering a sock on the kisser.

Men resent profanity and obscenity on the part of a woman. And at the present rate of feminine cussing, the resentment is building up alarmingly.-Dr. Bender would prefer that the girls express their frustrations with tears or in fainting, as their grandmothers did, instead of loosing a flow of choice barroom expletives. —Akron Beacon Journal.

Viewing Government Workers as "People."

WASHINGTON — Are government workers people? This question must rise again and again in the minds of those who work here, and elsewhere in the country, in government departments and agencies, as they read in the newspapers in these days the blasts from some self-annointed rescuer of the Republic who screams about firing a million or two million government workers, and such-like outbursts.

There is the implication that they are so many head of cattle to be slaughtered tomorrow morning.

Strange as it may seem, they are people, flesh-and-blood people, just as for example, are the thousands who work in our big corporations and mass production industries.

To us who see them day after day, on the streets, in their offices, in their homes, they are just the same sort of folks.

They are not happy just now. They are shaky and uneasy as the politicians bleat and roar, and naturally so. They suffer from the general psychology created here and elsewhere that it is pretty nearly a crime for a citizen to work for his government.

Government departments and agencies have been created through the years by act of congress, representing the people, to perform certain functions for the people which congress thinks government ought to perform. And, as with any business, it takes people, and lots of them, to do this.

To hear some of the noise, one would think that somebody somewhere had waved a magic wand, in a perverse moment, and created a giant usually known as "bureaucracy."

It was, of course, nothing of the kind. It has been done slowly through the years as our nation developed and grew. One of the latest departments created was commerce. It serves business and businessmen.

Herbert Hoover was perhaps the most active and successful secretary of commerce. The task that he directed in standardization of all sorts of things, from paper bags to bolts and nuts, though a butt of jokes around here at the time, has come to be recognized as perhaps the greatest single contribution to mass production. And that was just one of his services in that office.

The agriculture department has done a notable job for farmers in helping them with their problems, teaching them to farm better, providing new and hardier types of plants through its research facilities. And so on down the line.

The businessman who complains about "the long-haired fellows in government" does not mean those who help him. Nor does the farmer. In fact, that evil genius known as "the bureaucrat" always is some other fellow. It is so, too, with congressmen, who still howl, however, about "bureaucrats," when they know better.

Many people—unfortunately not enough—have made a career of government service, and have done well. That is, from the standpoint of personal satisfaction, though never from a financial standpoint.

There are some noteworthy examples of men who started at the bottom as youngsters and worked up to the top posts. This always is amazing, however, to anyone who knows the obstacles, including those raised by the politicians.

Then there is the rank and file, such as those who do the routine jobs in big private corporations, the people who handle the "red tape" which is necessary in a democracy because there must be a record of everything.

For some day, suddenly, somebody in congress is going to ask "how come?" and the written record in justification has got to be there.

This rank and file is the great foundation of government. Their lives are rather drab in some respects. They must watch the corners and pinch the pennies of their meager salaries. They are unchanging. They go from one administration to another. They are all that is permanent about this ephemeral city.

Some of them have got to go. Who shall it be? There can be no pity, for budgets must be balanced. But it just serves to remind us that government is people, and we are lucky to get as good as we do, everything considered.

Compromise Likely On Tariff Reductions.

WASHINGTON — In the matter of co-operation between Republicans in congress and Democrats in the executive office, you can chalk up a score on the positive side.

From Capitol Hill came Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Senator Milliken of Colorado. They met with Secretary of State Marshall and Under Secretaries Acheson and Clayton. What they have come out with is a reasonable compromise on tariff reductions under the reciprocal trade program.

Atcheson and Clayton did their best to meet the objections of tariff-minded Republicans.

In the future, full publicity will be given to the reasons behind tariff reductions. This is to meet the objection that schedules are to be reduced by some kind of secret hocus-pocus.

An industry or a trade union or any other group claiming to have suffered as a result of lowered tariffs can carry an appeal direct to the tariff commission. The commission will hear all the facts to determine whether the complaint is justified. If it is really justified, then remedial action will follow.

There are a number of other provisions in the compromise agreed to. They add up to the kind of common sense that should make it possible for us to go to the Geneva trade conference in April and say something like this to the other nations: "Yes, we intend to continue our reciprocal trade program. We will grant tariff reductions when it can be shown that our trade will benefit by those reductions."

Vandenberg is likely to have a tough time getting such a program approved. McKinley Republicans are talking as though the world had not changed since 1898. They would like to stymie the whole program with an "investigation." That is why Vandenberg is staying home instead of attending the Moscow conference.

But the chances for success are good. In spite of the threats of the Knutson wing, the party at this point hardly dares to move back into the horse-and-buggy age with quite such an abandoned whoop.

Even when this compromise is approved, there will be plenty of room for doubt. Doubt No. 1 is whether it goes far enough, that is to say, whether it will permit our bargaining delegation at the conference in Switzerland to push trade barriers down far enough.

Partly, this question turns around the condition of Great Britain today. We in America seem reluctant to face up to the facts.

Britain is living today on the oxygen of the loans from Canada and the United States, like a man who has been desperately ill and is now in the first dubious stages of convalescence.

Labor members of Parliament visiting Washington in recent weeks have been emphatic in warning that this country would have to go much further than it had ever gone before in scaling down the tariff wall. If that does not happen, then Britain will be compelled to turn to preferential trading.

Doubt No. 2 concerns the long-range intentions of the Republican party. If Vandenberg and Milliken can bring the back-sliders around to their point of view, the program will be okay for this year. Tariff reductions mutually agreed to between nations last for three years.

But next year the reciprocal trade act expires. The test will come on whether it is to be continued, or whether it will be sabotaged with crippling amendments.

G O P Plans Six Billion Budget Cut

SLASH WOULD OPEN WAY FOR LOWER TAXES

Party Leaders Disagree on Sharp Fund Reductions For National Defense.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Sharp disagreement broke out among congressional Republicans today over plans of GOP fiscal leaders to slash $6,000,000,000 from President Truman's new budget

The recommended reduction left the Republicans ample room for a 20 per cent tax cut and a $3,500,000,000 payment on the national debt. But it was achieved at the expense of national defense and other items which found many defenders among both Republicans and Democrats.

After studying Mr. Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget, the joint legislative budget subcommittee approved a ceiling of $31,500,000,000 on government spending for the 1948 fiscal year Its recommendation will be presented to the full 102-man budget committee on Friday, and that committee in turn must file a recommendation by Saturday midnight.

Other Actions.

Other congressional developments·

Atomic energy — Rival senators battled behind the scenes for an estimated 10 votes needed to block or approve the nomination of David E Lilienthal to head the atomic energy commission Sen Kenneth McKellar, D, Tenn, Lilienthal's most tenacious foe, said growing Republican opposition made him confident Lilienthal never would be approved Other sources said the outcome appeared a toss-up that might be settled either way by 10 votes

Labor—Earl F. Reed, attorney for the Weirton Steel company, assailed the National Labor Relations board as an "organizing agency" for the CIO Testifying before the senate labor committee, he charged that NLRB was trying to "wipe out" independent unions

Newspaper guild—Two members of the house labor committee said they would press for legislation to exclude "writers of opinion" from membership in the CIO American Newspaper guild Such a proposal was first advanced by J David Stern, who recently sold his strike-bound Philadelphia and Camden, N J, newspapers because, he said, guild restrictions on management were making his life intolerable.

Universal training—It was revealed that the war department had offered to cut the regular army to 875,000 if congress approves universal military training Many members of congress have said repeatedly that a training program has but scant chance of approval

Seeks Rent Boost.

Rent control — Sen Edwin C Johnson, D., Colo., said he favored boosting rent ceilings a flat 10 per cent. He said a blanket increase would provide the best method of assuring hardpressed landlords fair treatment A senate banking subcommittee planned to meet tomorrow to begin drafting a bill to continue rent control in some form after its June 30 expiration.

Today's observance of Abraham Lincoln's birthday slowed down congressional activity. The senate was not in session and the house set aside time to hear tributes to the great emancipator.

A major speech was planned in the house by Rep. Evan Howell, R, Ill, who comes from the same district that was represented by Lincoln during his 1847-49 term in the house Many Republicans were away from the capital for out of town speaking engagements

ACTIONS AGAINST GROCERS DISMISSED

Three suits against Mansfield food markets involving alleged violations of Office of Price administration regulations have been dismissed in common pleas court.

Filed Oct. 31, 1944, the suits sought to obtain from the court injunctions prohibiting the defendants from selling food products at higher than ceiling prices, without posting various OPA ceiling prices, and without adhering to certain bookkeeping practices set up in OPA regulations

Defendants were Margaret Bolantz, doing business as Bolantz Food Market, 271 Harker street, Earl Morahan, doing business as Morahan's Market, 612 Bowman street, and Angel Gligoroff, doing business as Balkan Grocery and Meats, 279 North Main street.

Parent Teachers Groups Convene for Programs Here

IN OBSERVANCE of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Parent-Teacher association, members of the West Fifth Street school met Tuesday evening for a special program and homecoming. All those participating on the program were presented with corsages of rosebuds.

GREAT EMANCIPATOR rests in this tomb at Springfield, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. —(CP)— Here in the heart of "the Lincoln country" there is an air of expectation and suspense as the 132nd anniversary of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln approaches, for 1947 is the long-awaited year when the last great storehouse of Lincoln lore, the famous Robert Todd Lincoln papers, will be released.

The Great Emancipator already is one of the most-written-about figures in world history, with nearly four thousand published works about him, but there remain many dark mysteries of his life, some of which historians hope will be cleared up this year.

They will have to wait several months yet, however, to begin avidly reading the vast collection which Lincoln's last son left to the Library of Congress.

Worldwide interest is at a high pitch over what these papers will reveal, for Lincoln long since has ceased to be only an American hero. The papers have been a storm center since it became known that Robert Todd Lincoln, an outstanding Chicago lawyer in the best tradition of his father's great place in the Illinois Bar, had them.

Almost Destroyed.

At one time it was rumored that Robert Todd Lincoln, fearful that they might spread confusion and misunderstanding about his father, was destroying them. There is a story that a group of leading American literary personalities prevailed upon the younger Lincoln to preserve them, and he finally agreed.

But he wanted to keep them secret until enough time passed after Abraham Lincoln's death to let his father's reputation "mellow." So he provided in his will that they should be kept secret until "21 years from the date of my death."

That 21 years, during which myriad students of Lincoln's life have been straining at the bit, will be up on July 26 of this year, for Robert Todd Lincoln died July 26, 1926. And this year it will have been 72 years since Lincoln fell under the bullet of the assassin, John Wilkes Booth.

EITHER REASON ENOUGH

There are two good reasons for not leading the fourth-best of your long suit against a No Trump game contract, when able to make a sound lead of an honor. Advanced players practically always lead an honor if their suit is topped by three cards as high as the nine or higher, with at least two of them "touching." The top of the touchers is led except when they include the ace and king, when the king is chosen. Violation of this procedure keeps your partner from reading your holding and also may present the declarer a gift of a cheap trick. Either of these is enough reason to lead the honor.

Pretty bold bidding, that by West, in view of the stronger No Trumps usually favored nowadays by most good players. Especially bold was his third bid of game in No Trumps after East's 3-Hearts rebid, which usually is considered an effort to sign off. His reason for doing it was that he considered his opponents weak defensive players, who might present him a thick or more in the play and therefore were "worth at least an extra ace or so to me," as he explained.

North justified West's confidence in his friendliness by leading his fourth-best club 6 when he could soundly have led the J. The 9 got that first trick, and the spade 10 was finessed to the Q. North laid down his club A, then knocked out West's K. The heart J was finessed to the K. South with no more clubs, returned his diamond 4. The A took it, four hearts were run and the spade J finesse enabled West to get the other two tricks he needed for his game.

Notice that the club J lead by North would beat West. If West won with the Q in dummy, North need only switch to his heart Q next time to kill that suit. If West won the opener with his club K, the result would be just as bad. And if West held up on the first trick, he still would be licked.

Ashland Seeking Additional Water

ASHLAND—Applications from 11 consulting engineers will be studied by Ashland city council and the waterworks superintendent and chemist at a meeting next Monday in connection with the proposed city water survey.

The survey is planned to work out a program of water supply to meet the growing demands on the city's water system. Industrial and residential growth makes additional water facilities necessary for fire protection, according to Paul Soles, city fire chief.
